"BABE" RUTH BREAKS HOME-RUN RECORD

The greatest home-run hitter in the history of baseball broke his own 1920 record of 54 home runs on Sept. 15, when he made his fifty-fifth circuit hit for the season of 1921. The record-breaking "homer" was made in the fifth inning of the Yankee-St. Louis game at the Polo Grounds, New York. The hit not only scored Ruth himself but sent a man in ahead of him. The immense crowd went wild and pandemonium reigned. There never has been such a batter as Ruth, and his work is the most wonderful phenomenon in the history of the game.

Secretary Hughes Seeks Relief From Office Cares in Golf

SECRETARY OF STATE HUGHES, like many of the statesmen of the national capital, notably President Harding, is an ardent devotee of the royal and ancient game of golf. The accompanying photograph was taken as he was on his way to the links, having laid aside for a time the cares of his office. Since the Harding Administration came into power Mr. Hughes has been about the busiest member of the Cabinet. Many pressing problems were left as a legacy from the previous Administration, chief among which was the question of mandates, of the Island of Yap and of the negotiation of the peace treaty between the United States and Germany and Austria. In the handling of these delicate problems Mr. Hughes has again given evidence of the great ability which had been previously demonstrated by his career as a lawyer and as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Little Waifs Provided With Homes in British Dominions

THE saddest feature of the period following the war has been the fate of the innocent children who had no responsibility for the conflict, and yet have been the greatest sufferers. They have died by millions from starvation or malnutrition, and millions more of those who have survived will face life with enfeebled constitutions. Their plight has appealed powerfully to the sympathies of the world, and many philanthropic organizations are putting forth great efforts to remedy their deplorable condition. Many are being brought from the famine-stricken regions to London, and after having been fed, clothed and strengthened are sent out to the British colonies, where homes are ready for them, and where they will have an opportunity to grow up as sturdy and prosperous colonists. The accompanying pictures present some phases of this beneficent work. Not only foreign waifs, but English orphans are thus being provided for.

Silesian Question That Threatened Allied Unity Referred for Settlement to League of Nations

THE vexed question of the division of Upper Silesia between the two claimants, Germany and Poland, has been found insoluble by the Premiers of the allied nations. At the sessions in Paris M. Briand, though opposed to both the British and Italian Premiers, fought vigorously to secure the rich industrial region in South-east Silesia for Poland. The question of boundaries, however, in view of the confusing plebiscite vote, evoked radical differences of opinion, and in order to prevent disruption of the Entente Lloyd George proposed that the whole question be referred to the League of Nations. The French Premier reluctantly accepted the proposal and the shadow resting over allied unity was lifted. Nothing definite in the matter has yet been done by the League.

Disastrous Flood Sweeps San Antonio, Texas

HAVOC and death were brought to San Antonio, Texas, on Sept. 10 by a flood that rushed through the streets of the city. A cloudburst had occurred on Friday night in the mills along the Olmos Creek, and the creek, besides the San Antonio River and other streams, became swollen to an extent hitherto unknown in the city's history. A solid wall of water estimated at from ten to twenty feet in height swept through the city before daylight and inundated an area approximately two miles long by half a mile wide, including a part of the business section and a portion of the residence area along River Avenue and adjacent streets, as well as the thickly populated west side. Hundreds of men, women and children met death in the oil-coated waters of the flood as houses collapsed, bridges were swept out, trees and electric light and telephone poles crashed. Countless acts of heroism occurred as civilians and soldiers braved the current and floating debris to carry women and children to places of safety. Thousands of people were rescued before daybreak by men who worked all through the night, risking their lives to save others. Between two and three hundred persons are believed to have perished and the property damage, it is estimated, will exceed $5,000,000.

Debris piled high in San Antonio street after the waters had in part receded. Many structures were swept from their foundations and others irretrievably wrecked.

Hungarians Rejoice Over Recovery of Former Territory

HUNGARIAN TROOPS IN STEEL HELMETS PASSING BENEATH THE VICTORY ARCH UPON THEIR ENTRANCE INTO THE PROVINCE OF BARANYA, A TERRITORY FORMERLY HUNGARIAN, BUT WHICH SINCE 1918 HAD BEEN IN THE POSSESSION OF JUGOSLAVIA.

(Photos © Keystone View Co.)

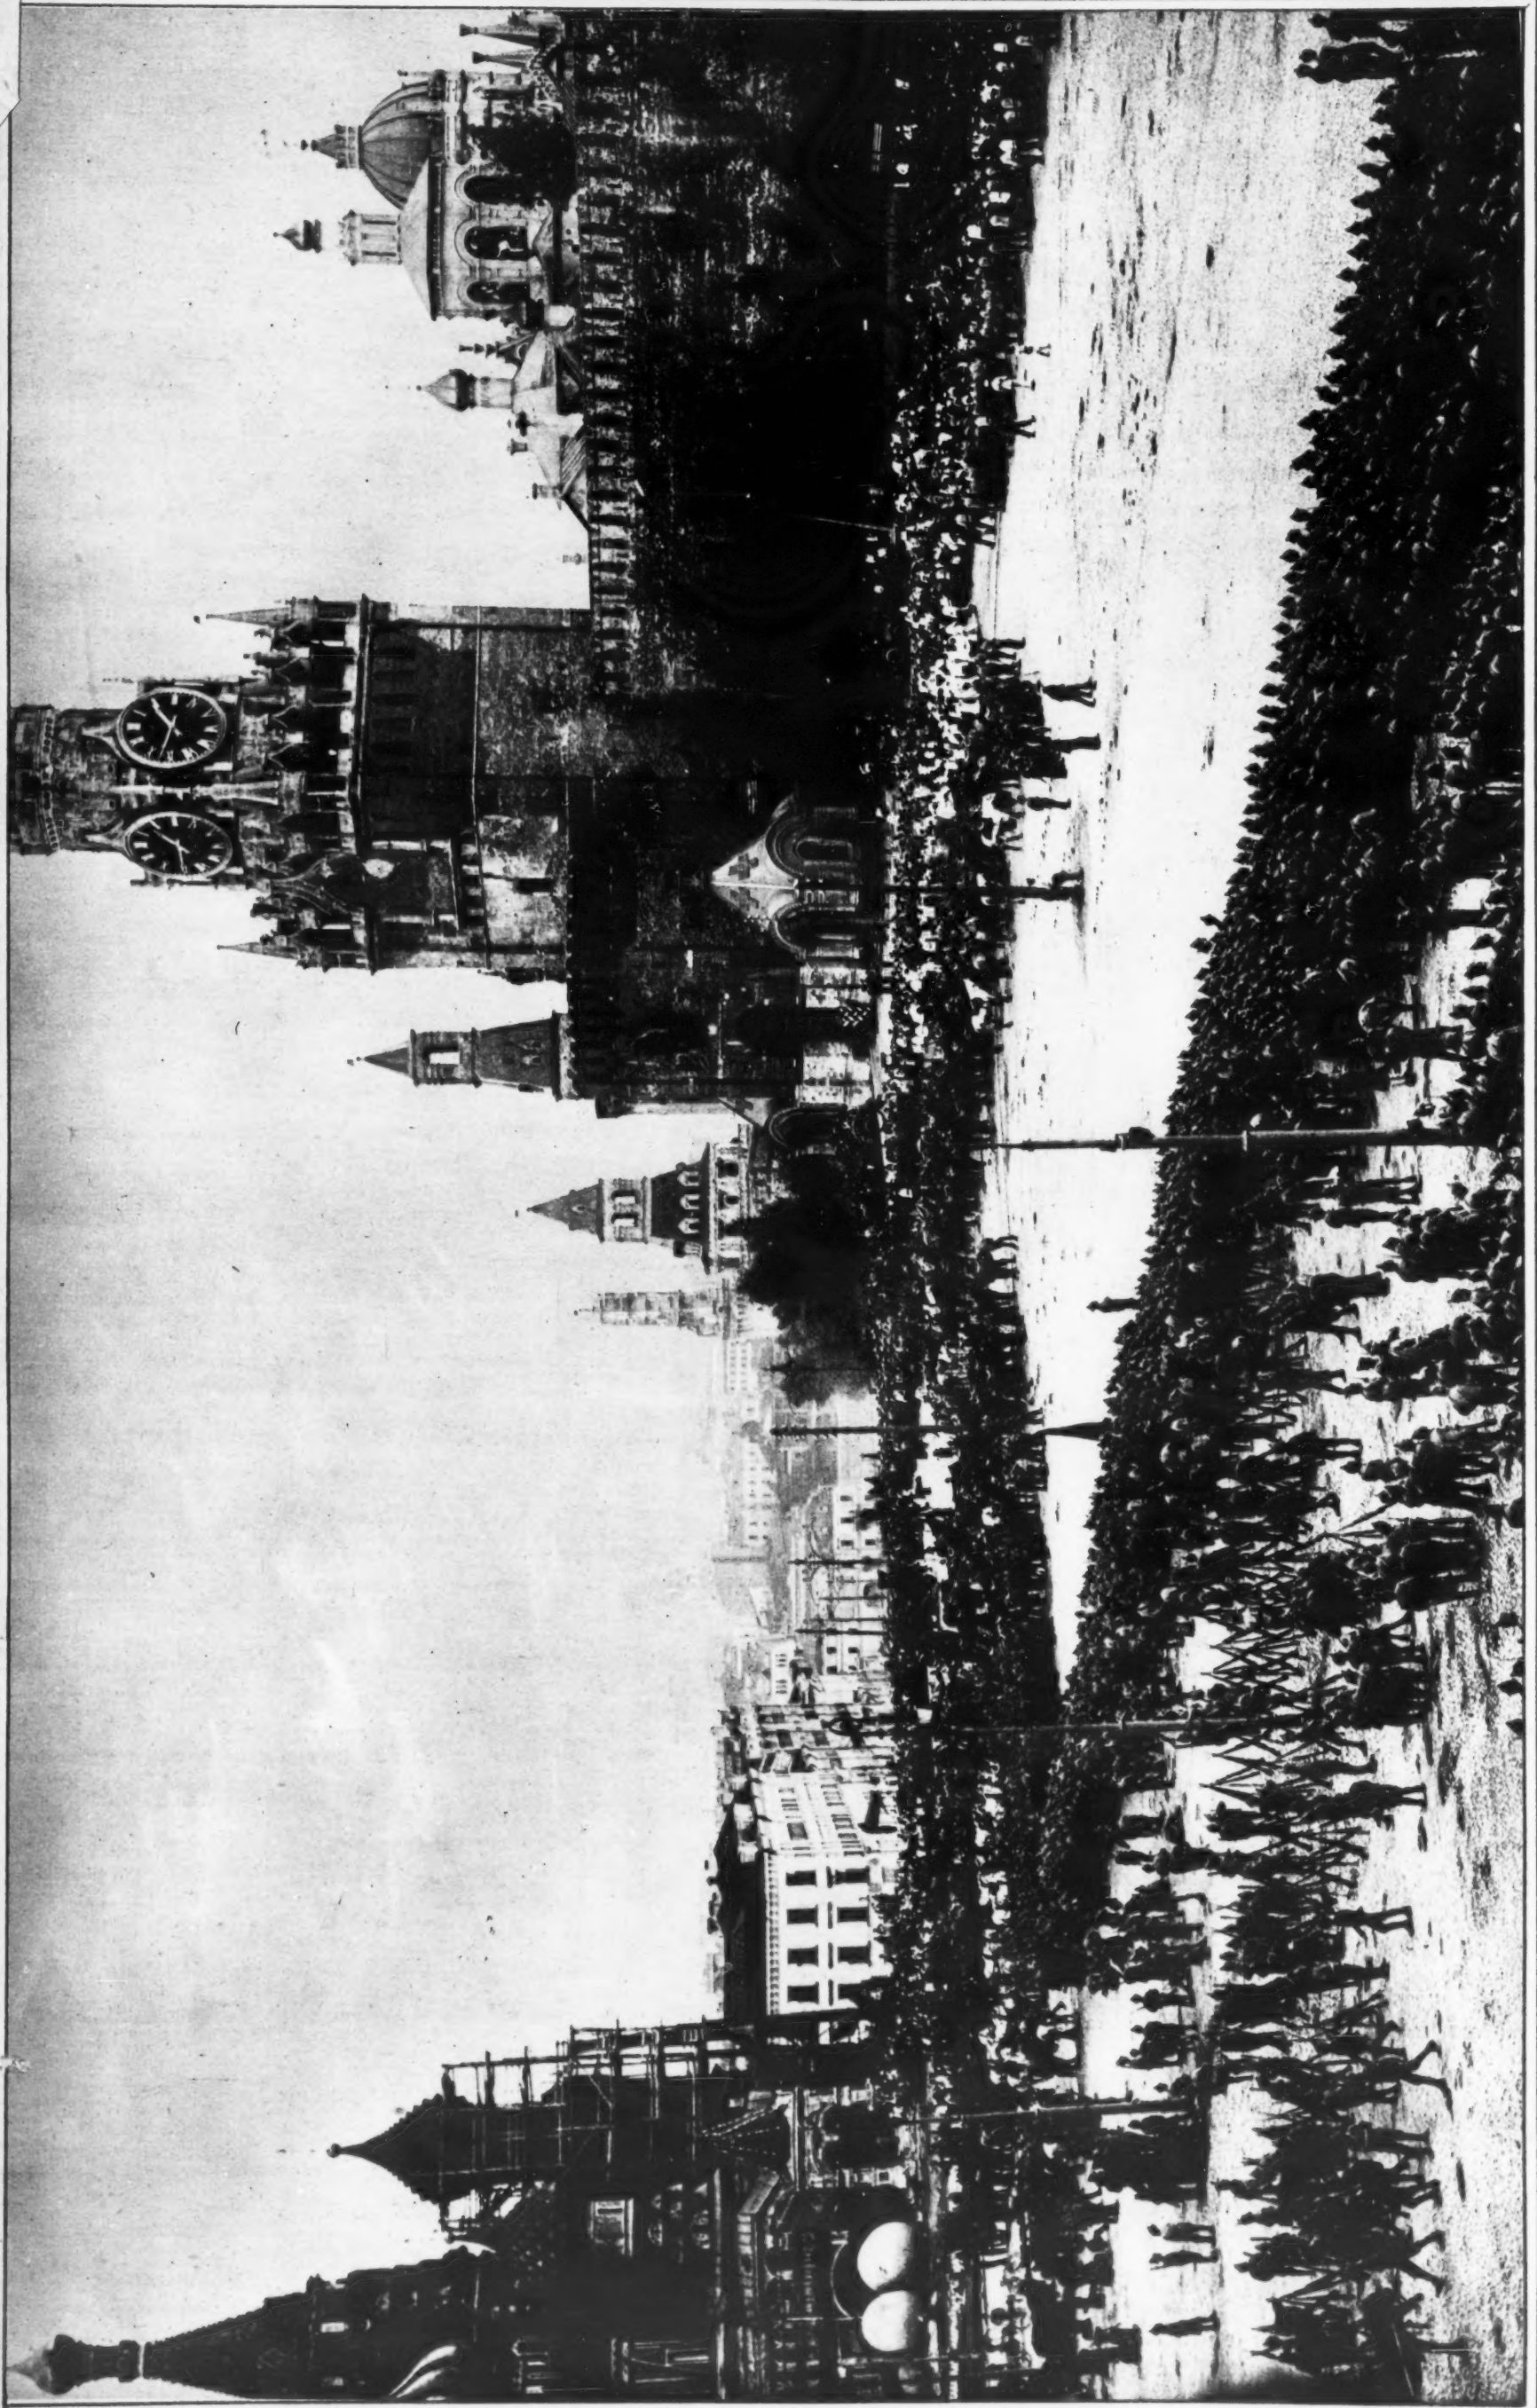

CONTINGENT upon the ratification of the peace of Trianon by the Hungarian Parliament, two of its territorial clauses were to be executed in August. One of them provided for the return to Hungary of the city of Baja and the county of Baranya, which since 1918 has been occupied by Yugoslavia. The Magyar inhabitants of this region protested against being incorporated in Horthy's Hungary and organized an autonomous administration under Yugoslav protection. They declared that they were eager to rejoin a democratic Hungarian republic, but that they preferred Yugoslav occupation to the White Terror of Horthy's army. Their protests, however, though supported by the Yugoslav Government, were overruled, and on Aug. 22 Horthy's troops entered the territory, the Yugoslav troops having left on the night before. Several thousand Hungarians opposed to the Horthy régime fled to Yugoslav territory to escape persecution. The occasion was made a subject of national rejoicing, not only in the recovered province, but in Budapest, the capital of Hungary. The Pecs mining district had originally been handed over temporarily to the Yugoslav Government in order to insure the annual delivery for a period of five years of a given quantity of steam coal from the Pecs mines.

Seven-Hundred-Ton Gun Raised From Ocean Bed

A REMARKABLE feat of engineering was accomplished by the Italian naval authorities when a huge gun turret formerly attached to the sunken dreadnought Leonardo da Vinci was raised from the bed of the sea near Otranto. The dreadnought was sunk by an explosion in August, 1916. She was of 22,380 tons, and too important a vessel to be relinquished without an effort to salvage her. Soon after the war ended she was raised, righted and refloated, a work made the more difficult because in sinking she had turned turtle, burying her gun turrets in the mud. The five gun turrets had to be detached and left there for the time. When their turn came later it was found that no crane was able to lift such enormous weights. Lieut. Col. Odoardo Gianelli of the Italian Naval Engineers therefore devised and patented the requisite apparatus. A large circular caisson was lowered to and connected with a turret, the mud about it removed by dredging and then the caisson and attached turret were raised by compressed air. The process and the recovered turret are shown in the pictures above.

Is it worth while?

WHEN you find that you tire easily, when happiness fails through headache, backache, nervousness—then ask yourself: "Is it worth while to wear harmful shoes?"

Physicians assert that the bad effects of wrongly shaped shoes are far-reaching. The unnatural posture induced by high heels throws the internal organs out of position. Resulting troubles often necessitate operations.

The woman who would be at her best and brightest will wear Cantilever Shoes. Their flexible arches, which conform to the natural action of the foot and allow the muscles free play, enable you to walk or stand correctly with minimum fatigue, and eliminate all danger of weak or fallen arches.

They stimulate—not retard—the circulation which brings to the cheeks a bewitching glow. They do not abuse the nerves which run from the feet up through the body even to the eyes. Knowing that your physical perfection starts with your feet, you can take satisfaction in the thought that your Cantilever Shoes conduce to your health and charm, your youthfulness and joy in living.

Good taste distinguishes every detail of Cantilever Shoes. They exemplify the fact that women and their shoes can be at once sensible and stylish.
